

Why we need the Lived Experience Hub

- the Hub has been set up to support work on the Coming Home Action Plan

- the Coming Home Action Plan is a plan to support people with learning disabilities to live independently in their communities, close to family and friends.

Why we need the Lived Experience Hub

- the Hub will give people with learning disabilities and their families a way to be involved in developing the plan
- it will give people with learning disabilities and their families a way to shape decision making

What the Lived Experience Hub will do

- work together with others on tasks for the Coming Home Action Plan (the Plan)

- check people have done the work they said they would do

- connect people to support networks

- share good practice to make sure the Plan reflects lived experience

- raise awareness and understanding of the Plan

How everything fits together

Maree Todd is the Minister in charge of making sure the work on the Coming Home Action Plan is done

Minister COSLA

COSLA is the Convention of Scottish Local Authorities.

They represent local authorities all across Scotland.

The Strategic Oversight Group will make sure all the work on the Coming Home Action Plan is going ahead as planned.

The Coming Home Delivery Group will bring together all the people in charge of leading the work in their local area.

The Workstream Leads are the people leading on the different areas of work.

The Peer Support Network is a group of organisations who support people and families.

A rights-based approach

= Participation

= people are involved in decisions that affect their rights

= Accountability

= checks are made to see how peoples rights are being affected

= Non discrimination and equality

= people are not treated unfairly

= Empowerment

= everyone is supported to know their rights and to take part

= Legality

= everything is done in line with peoples legal rights
